Brief Biographical Sketch

Suzanne H. Crowhurst Lennard, Ph.D.(Arch.)

Suzanne Crowhurst Lennard is Director of the International Making Cities Livable Council, which she founded with her husband, Henry L. Lennard in 1985, and Organizer of the International Making Cities Livable Conferences, held in Europe and North America. The IMCL Council is dedicated to an interdisciplinary and international approach to increasing the livability of our cities, towns and suburbs – especially for our children.

Dr. Crowhurst Lennard is the author or co-author of seven books, including The Forgotten Child: Cities for the Well-Being of Children, and her most recent book, Genius of the European Square. She has also published widely in professional journals and encyclopedias. Her publications have been acclaimed as important contributions to the understanding of cities by scholars and civic leaders including Lewis Mumford, Neal Peirce and Charleston, SC Mayor Joseph Riley.

In her books, articles and lectures, she has focused special attention on the impact of the built environment on children's health and well-being. She believes that if you want to make a city livable for all, you must first make it livable for children.

Dr. Crowhurst Lennard is a Consultant to cities in the US, Canada and Europe on the design of public space, and making cities livable for children.

In collaboration with the National Town Builders Association, Dr. Crowhurst Lennard is currently spearheading a new program to develop Guidelines, Standards and a Certification System for Child-Friendly Neighborhoods, Towns and Cities.
