

Child Safety Information & Product Recall

Life with your new baby or child seems to include products for play, encouraging their growth and development, and to help keep them safe.

While most products have been tested for safety concerns before they hit the shelves, many may be sold in stores for months or years before a potential hazard is identified.

If you have concerns about a particular item, would like to research an item that you are about to buy, or are just curious about items that have been recalled in the past, here are some phone numbers and websites that you may find useful...
